

Inspect Electrical Equipment Now to Prevent Costly Fires

Through fire alone, we in America lose in excess of $300,000,000 of our wealth every year. This is a loss of nearly a million dollars a day, much of which could be avoided if better attention were paid to the causes of fire.

Electricity is not the most common cause of fire, but its misuse does result in the loss of many homes every year. Oscar Butterfield, city electrical inspector, points out during this National Fire Prevention Week some of the common electrical hazards and to urge all citizens to survey their own premises to find and eliminate all such conditions.

"The basement, if you have one, is a good place to start. In this location, see if metal enclosures for wires are rusting away at any point due to dampness. See that wires are not being used for supporting garden tools, or being otherwise misrouted. If temporary extensions have been installed, call a competent wireman to substitute a permanent, safe wiring material. Give the fuse box a careful inspection. It is important that these electric 'safety valves' be in good operating condition. Unscrew fuses to see that they have not been tampered with in any way, and see that fuses are rated not over 15 amperes, which is the proper size for most home circuits.

those which have been approved as safe by Underwriters' Laboratories. Cords approved by the Laboratories have bracelet-like labels wrapped around them so that they may be readily identified.

"It should not be necessary to warn against leaving flatirons connected when not in use, but such carelessness causes more fires than are caused by any other electrical appliance. The newer automatic irons turn themselves off when they get too hot and are considered safer, but it should be made a rule to disconnect the iron by pulling out the cord, whenever the operator leaves the iron."

"In other rooms of the house, inspect lamp sockets, wires on chain fixtures and all extension cords. If sockets are coming apart or fail to operate, have them replaced. If receptacles no longer hold an electrician can, easily install new ones. Have worn out lamp cords and extension cords replaced.

"If householders will follow these simple precautions and will maintain their electrical apparatus in good repair, they need not have fear from this source."

Co. Approves Legal Fees for Refunding Alondra District

Formal approval for the payment of approximately $6,100 in legal fees to the firm of O'Melveny and Myers for passing on the proceedings leading up to the refunding of A. & L. 28, Alondra Park, was given by the board of supervisors late last week.

The matter was held up, delaying the proceedings that much, at last week's meeting of the board. Supervisor Oscar Hauge moved to grant the appropriation last week, but was outvoted.

In Fiji the human head is sacred and it is an insult to reach above it.

Younger Set Finds College Interesting

By BERNARD FRIEDMAN Instead of marching on, Time files on with the speed of a Stuka bomber when it comes to keeping up with what our Torrance young people are doing. A few months ago they were in Torrance high—now they are scattered and finding new interests elsewhere. I've been checking up on our "younger set" for The Herald and here's what I learned this week:

Have you noticed the swell cartoons in the windows of the Torrance Electric shop? Every one stops, looks and sometimes chuckles at the drawings. They are the work of Bill Bosche, who is putting his talent to good use. He graduated from Torrance high in June and is now attending Chenaud Art Institute.

A few more June grads are attending U.C.L.A.—Marvin Lee, star basketball player, is there on a scholarship as is Van Tress Barnard. Both will probably see a lot of action on the Uclan's frosh basketball squad this winter. Harold Kerber is also going to U.C.L.A. He and his fellow-graduate, Jim Dowell, are committing with Bob Kirkland. This is Jim's freshman year. His brother Army is a sophomore.

The talk of the town is Gerald Grubb's sensational ball playing on the Bruin eleven last Friday night. It looks as if Gerald Grubb (he's known as Jerry now) is headed for big things on the gridiron. Grubb isn't the only footballer from Torrance playing for the Bruins though. Marvin Goettsch, who played half-back on the Tartar squad, is on the Uclan frosh team.

Crosstown in Los Angeles a couple of Gerald and Marvin's schoolmates are attending U.S.C. Patty Post, a personable young lady, and Bill Stewart, champion high jumper, are Trojans. John Hall, a great miler, changed his plans and is now attending Compton Junior college.

Kenny Perkin is at Long Beach Junior College, playing first string tackle. Arlys Fossum is attending her sister's alma mater—Whittier and there's a lot more that I've still got to find out their educational, working, house-keeping and sports activities for another report in The Herald later.

New Record in Motor Registrations Anticipated

SACRAMENTO (U.P.)—The department of motor vehicles looked forward today to a new record in total number of vehicles registered in the state in view of a new high for the first seven months of the year. Director James M. Carter reported there were 2,430,184 passenger cars registered in the first seven months, a 119,929 increase over the same period of last year.

RENEW CITY INSURANCE. On motion by Mayor Tom McGuire, the city council renewed the insurance on the municipal auto fleet with Howard G. Locke Tuesday night for the ensuing year. Except for narrow coastal borders, Greenland is entirely covered by a vast ice cap.
